

Our beloved United Church of Christ bears witness best when our churches thrive and its leaders are whole.

For generations, the United Church Board for Ministerial Assistance has supported pastors, lay church workers and their families with assistance when finances are challenging and with programs that sustain soul and body.

And then came the pandemic of 2020. Grief and isolation challenged churches and leaders to adapt, to stay healthy and faithful.

It was like nothing we had ever experienced.

What we do matters.

Because of what we do—with your help—our churches and leaders will continue to stand for justice, promote love and mercy, and meet each generation's responsibility to tell and live out Christ's story of Good News.

This time... Next time... Every time.

We will be there to make all the difference.

Every time.

This time,

we were ready with a helping hand because our United Church Board for Ministerial Assistance programs—funded by generations before us—are designed for life’s hardest moments.

When the pandemic hit and people’s lives were impacted we were ready to help... and we did.

Throughout this crisis we worked hard to ensure pastors and lay church workers received the support and encouragement they needed.

Thousands of donors made those expressions of love possible.

Next time,

we’ll be ready again. With gifts from individuals like you to the Generations of Service capital campaign, we will be there: helping a young pastor navigate debt, teaching church leaders transformative skills for tough times, putting food on the table and keeping our leaders healthy amid the unique stresses they face daily.

Every time.

What we do . . . together . . . matters.

Our mission is to “serve those who serve.”

Because...

Our connections run deep.

Our programs are more relevant than ever.

Our efforts are accountable and effective.

Your gift ensures we will be there... always.

The United Church Board for Ministerial Assistance and our Generations of Service campaign will make all the difference.

This time...

Next time...

Every time.
